The Detroit Institute of Arts, known for its extensive collection of fine art masterpieces, doubles up as an ideal spot for car enthusiasts. On weekends, you'll find an array of stunning classic cars and vintage beauties parked outside the museum, creating a fusion of art and automotive passion. The vibrant colors of the cars pop against the backdrop of the museum's impressive architecture, providing a feast for the eyes.

Belle Isle Park

Belle Isle Park, a picturesque island park located on the Detroit River, is a haven for nature lovers and car enthusiasts alike. Every sunny weekend, the park's open spaces transform into an automotive paradise. The sound of revving engines and the gleam of polished paints fill the air as car enthusiasts line up their candy-colored vehicles along the park's scenic roads. It's a perfect day out for families, as children get to marvel at the impressive cars while enjoying the park's recreational activities.

The Detroit Riverwalk

The Detroit Riverwalk, stretching for five and a half miles along the Detroit River, has become a favorite spot for cars and their owners to spend their weekends. The riverfront's stunning views and refreshing breeze make it an ideal place to showcase their beloved vehicles while socializing with fellow car enthusiasts. As the cars line up along the riverfront, spectators can catch glimpses of vintage classics, futuristic sports cars, and everything in between.

The Henry Ford Museum

The Henry Ford Museum, dedicated to preserving the history of American innovation, is another must-visit location for car lovers. The museum's sprawling grounds often witness numerous car events and gatherings that bring together passionate car owners and their eye-catching rides. From classic Thunderbirds to powerful Mustangs, the parking lots outside the museum become a nostalgic haven for all car enthusiasts.

Motown Museum

Motown Museum, the birthplace of the legendary Motown Records, not only celebrates the rich musical history of Detroit but also provides a unique backdrop for car aficionados. The museum's iconic façade and surrounding streets often witness stunning car displays, with owners proudly showing off their customized vehicles. The combination of classic Motown hits playing in the background and the gleaming cars creates an unbeatable atmosphere that truly captures the spirit of Detroit.

The Fisher Building

The Fisher Building, an architectural gem in Detroit's New Center area, serves as a captivating backdrop for car enthusiasts to gather. With its grand design and stunning details, this historic skyscraper perfectly complements the candy-colored cars that line its streets. On weekends, you'll find car owners showcasing their vehicles of all makes and models, turning the area around the Fisher Building into an automotive wonderland.

Shortly after World War II, three Dearborn brothers bought a vacant parcel to build a drive-in theater. Local groups opposed them, fearing such a place would elicit "immoral behavior." But the Clark family persevered to see its movie palace become a Metro Detroit mainstay, hosting celebrities, rock stars and a never-ending line of families with kids in footie pajamas. A handshake transferred ownership to movie magnate Charles Shafer and his business partner, Bill Clark, who expanded the theater to a massive nine screens. But blockbusters and hordes of teens couldn't mitigate the effects of Detroit's decline, auto company bankruptcies and Michigan's economic malaise. Despite it all, the mighty Ford-Wyoming kept the movies showing, bringing a bit of Hollywood glamour to the gritty Motor City.
