A book about the Battle of the Chosin Reservoir (Korea 1950)-- the third cornerstone battle of the United States Marine Corps.

I turned 19 years old in Korea during the fall of 1950. A few weeks later, I found myself a participant in one of the ultimate test of the Corps.

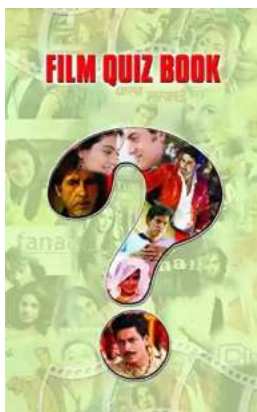

My job was driving a 6X6, but like all Marines, I was trained as a rifleman first, and it wasn't long before my life depended on it.

I re-established contact with a lot of my old comrades when I joined The Chosin Few in 1986, and I've met a lot of my brothers since then. This book is not just the story of my experience, but that of all of us who fought together on those bitter cold days and nights more than 60 years ago.
