Each story in the collection, “Paris Shorts,” is enjoyable as a stand alone work of fiction.

Additionally, each has the advantage of featuring one or more of the characters in the story line of all my novels and short stories written since 2012.

The time frames for these stories vary, and will be notated for each individual piece.

“Grandma and Grandpa in the Latin Quarter” is set within the second “Slumming in Paris” novel.

Short stories like this, I believe, do not require reading the novel first, or any other of my fiction work.

Yet, the stories will either enhance the reading of the fiction the characters participate in, and in this case, especially “Slumming in Paris, Part Two, The Children” ; or, if one has already read the related novel, will give extra meaning and nuance to the short story.

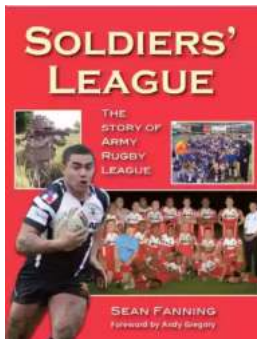

A current kept-up-to-date chronology of the time sequence of all the short stories and novels is available on my site on my page, My Fiction Storylines.

My wife Sheila and I spent 5 1/2 weeks in Paris late 2012, which has formed the setting basis for the “Slumming in Paris” novels, and theses short stories. My series “Paris in 5 1/2 Weeks” presents many of my photos taken then, which I hope you will also enjoy.

Maybe best of all, is my all Paris page :-)) with links to all things Paris, on my site : <http://www.felipeadanlerma.com/paris/> .
