The race earned its name from a legendary car that has become an icon of the event. The black-striped yellow Chevrolet Camaro, known as "The Black Tiger," has taken part in every edition of the race since its inception. This car, driven by different talented racers throughout the years, has cemented its status as a symbol of power and determination.

A Journey through Treacherous Terrain

Imagine driving through serpentine mountain roads, where one slight mistake could send you tumbling down the cliffside. That's what makes The Black Tiger a true test of nerves and precision. The route takes racers through dense forests, steep canyons, and narrow tunnels, providing them with an adrenaline rush like no other.

The race starts in the charming town of San Miguel de Allende, where enthusiastic crowds gather to witness the daring drivers set off on their quest for victory. One of the most challenging sections of the race is the infamous "Devil's Backbone." This part of the route incorporates a series of tight turns that twist and wind along the mountain ridges. Daredevil racers push their cars to the limit, testing their skills and their resolve, all while balancing on the edge of uncertainty.

The second of six sports-car racing stories about Woody Hartford, a young racing enthusiast, and his car--the Black Tiger.

After Woody totals the Black Tiger, the only chance to save the car's company from bankruptcy is to race the brand new Black Tiger--the Mark II--the Mexican Road Race, a grueling 2,000-mile race from southern Mexico to Ciudad Juarez on the Mexican/US border.

Woody and his eclectic and international team of mechanics (including Worm McNess) will have to learn to work together--putting the Black Tiger first and their egos second--if they are going to win.

This exciting story of one of the most famous sports car races is based on the author's firsthand experience of car racing and his understanding of the qualities required of the successful driver: courage, caution, sportsmanship, and intimate knowledge of his machine.

Written by racing enthusiast Leonard Wibberley (author of The Mouse that Roared) under the pen name Patrick O'Connor, The Black Tiger Series transports the reader back to a golden age of both racing and American life to tell timeless stories of courage, teamwork, glory, heartbreak, and the human condition.
